

CASE STUDY

@NoContextPhilly

How I Built a 98K Sports Media Community
from Zero to 150M+ Views

Jacob McLure

UC Berkeley Economics '25 | jacobmclure@berkeley.edu

jacobmclure-collab.github.io/Jacob-McLure-Experiences

98K

FOLLOWERS

150M+

TOTAL VIEWS

20M+

INTERACTIONS

5,511

TOTAL POSTS

OVERVIEW

NoContextPhilly is a Philadelphia sports fan community I founded in September 2021 and have grown independently to 98,000 followers across Instagram. The page covers the Eagles, Phillies, Sixers, and Flyers through real-time reactive content, memes, game coverage, and fan-driven storytelling. Over four and a half years, I've produced 5,511 pieces of content generating over 150 million views and 20 million interactions, built brand partnerships with companies like Beatbox and Flipz, and independently launched a podcast on Spotify with over 2,000 listeners.

This case study breaks down the strategy, content approach, growth timeline, and performance metrics behind the page, and explains how the skills I developed building NoContextPhilly translate directly to professional marketing, social media, and brand storytelling roles.

THE CHALLENGE

Building an Audience from Nothing.

In September 2021, I started NoContextPhilly with zero followers, zero budget, and zero connections in the media space. The Philadelphia sports fan community on Instagram was already crowded with established accounts, media outlets, and beat reporters. The challenge was simple but difficult: how do you make 5 million Philly sports fans choose to follow you over everyone else already in their feed?

The answer was never about being first to the news. It was about being the account that understood what Philly fans were feeling and packaged it in a way that made them stop scrolling.

STRATEGY

Content That Understands the Audience.

1. Reactive Meme-First Content

The core of the page is reactive content tied to real-time moments. After a big Eagles win, a controversial Sixers trade, or a Phillies walk-off, the goal is to capture what fans are already thinking and feeling and turn it into content within minutes. Speed matters, but tone matters more. The voice has to feel like it's coming from inside the fanbase, not above it.

2. Intentional Copywriting

Every caption is written with the same attention I'd give professional copy. The text isn't filler under an image. It's often the reason the post performs. I write captions that fans screenshot, share in group chats, and quote back in comments. That intentionality is what separates the page from accounts that just repost highlights.

3. Platform-Native Optimization

I analyze post timing, format performance, and engagement patterns constantly. In 2026, 64% of my top-performing content is static posts (memes, graphics, screenshots) and 36% is Reels. That ratio isn't accidental. I tested and adjusted until I found what my specific audience responds to, rather than chasing whatever Instagram's algorithm promotes generically.

4. Community Over Reach

I've never optimized for virality alone. The goal has always been building a community that comes back daily, not one that sees a single post and moves on. That's why the engagement rate sits at 7% in 2026, well above the industry average of 1-3% for accounts this size.

The Numbers.

2026 Year-to-Date Performance

Last 90 Days

Last 30 Days Deep Dive

AUDIENCE DEMOGRAPHICS

Age Distribution

Top Cities

Content Mix (Last 30 Days)

GROWTH TIMELINE

From 0 to 98K.

● Sep 2021	Founded Started the page from zero followers with no budget or existing audience.
● 2021-2022	Foundation Established voice and content style. Focused on Eagles and Phillies content during peak seasons. Began building a consistent posting rhythm and early community.
● 2022-2023	Acceleration Grew to 10K followers through viral reactive content during the Eagles Super Bowl run. Community growth compounded as fans shared content organically.
● 2023-2024	Monetization Grew from 10K to 25K followers. Secured first brand partnerships with Beatbox and Flipz. Launched podcast on Spotify reaching 2,000+ listeners.
● 2024-2025	Scale Grew from 25K to 63K followers. Generated 150M+ cumulative views. Produced 1,250 pieces of content in 2025 alone. Growth rate accelerated significantly.
● 2025-2026	Current Grew from 63K to 98K followers. 7% engagement rate. 38.8M views in the last 90 days. 12M views and 2M accounts reached in the last 30 days alone.

BRAND PARTNERSHIPS

Secured and executed paid brand partnership campaigns with Beatbox Beverages and Flipz Snacks, creating sponsored content that maintained the page's authentic voice while delivering measurable brand visibility and engagement for partners. Also launched and independently produce a sports podcast on Spotify reaching 2,000+ listeners, expanding the brand beyond Instagram into audio.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Voice is everything. The reason NoContextPhilly works is that it sounds like a Philly fan, not a brand trying to sound like one. That instinct for authentic voice is what I bring to every professional role.
- Data informs decisions, not replaces instinct. I check analytics daily, but the best content decisions come from understanding the audience deeply enough to know what they need before the data confirms it.
- Consistency compounds. 5,511 posts over 4.5 years means showing up every single day. Growth was never one viral moment. It was the accumulation of thousands of good decisions.
- Community engagement rate matters more than follower count. A 7% engagement rate at 98K followers generates more real impact than a 1% rate at 500K. I've always optimized for connection over reach.